

Forensic comparative science: qualitative, quantitative source determination of unique impressions, images, and objects » Vanderkolk Forensic Comparative Science - Qualitative Quantitative. The individualisation of a dog bite mark: A case study highlighting. Oct 27, 2015. Forensic Comparative Science: Qualitative, Quantitative Source Determination of Unique Impressions, Images, and Objects 2009 by J. 9780123735829: Forensic Comparative Science - AbeBooks. Forensic Comparative Science: Qualitative Quantitative Source Determination of Unique Impressions, Images, and Objects Vanderkolk Vanderkolk John. Preprint Oct 7, 2014. The courts may require the forensic expert to identify which specific dog caused the damage or fatal bite in an effort to establish the